Visiting the Harvard University Archives

The Harvard University Archives is located in Pusey Library in Harvard Yard. Non-Harvard ID holders who plan to conduct research in the Archives reading room should register with the Library Privileges Office in Widener Library before arriving at Pusey Library. A photo ID is required for all visitors. The Harvard University Archives is wheelchair-accessible through Lamont Library. Lamont Library is located at the corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Quincy Street in the far southeast corner of Harvard Yard, east of Harvard Square.

Latitude: 42.373561    Longitude: -71.115891

DIRECTIONS

By Car: From I90–Massachusetts Turnpike: Take the Cambridge/Allston exit. Bear right, go straight, cross the River Street Bridge, and immediately make a left turn onto Memorial Drive. At the third light, turn right onto JFK Street. Drive straight into Harvard Square. (Out of Town News, on your right, marks the center of Harvard Square.)

On-street parking is scarce in Cambridge, but there are several public parking lots and garages around the square.

By Subway (the "T"): Harvard Yard is steps away from the Harvard Square stop on the RED Line of the MBTA (the "T"), Boston’s subway system.

By Train or Bus: Amtrak and bus terminals are located at both North Station and South Station. From South Station take the RED Line outbound (toward ALEWIFE) for six stops to Harvard Square. From North Station take either the GREEN Line inbound (towards PARK STREET) and switch to the RED Line outbound (towards ALEWIFE) to Harvard Square.

From Logan Airport:

By Subway (the "T"): Take the SILVER Line to SOUTH STATION. Switch to the RED Line outbound (toward Alewife) for six stops to HARVARD SQUARE. A ride costs $2.00, using a CharlieTicket pass.

By Taxi: The ride to Harvard Square takes about 20–30 minutes, depending upon traffic. Typically, the ride costs approximately $35–$40.